Naked World* (documentary/Arlene Donnelly Nelson/2003)

Contemporary artist Spencer Tunick is widely celebrated for his elaborately posed installations of multiple nude figures within interestingly select public settings. His temporary site-specific installations have taken place across the globe in cities including Lyon, Melbourne, Mexico City, New York and Barcelona to name a few. Tunick gathers legions of volunteers to take part in his elaborate installations which in the past have drawn numbers well into the thousands. In 2001, the documentary Naked States followed him as he photographed ordinary people nude in public places throughout the 50 United States. His latest project is a global odyssey to photograph nudes on all seven continents. Arlene Donnelly Nelson's follow-up documentary on Spencer Tunick follows the artist as he invites thousands of people of all races, shapes and sizes out of their clothes and into the streets for art's sake. Naked World is a visual odyssey that brings to light the unique vision of the man behind the lens, one that portrays form and human beauty within unexpected but familiar environments.
